Priorities for the 2016 Student Scholarship Expo

- Make EXPO more inclusive and representative of all disciplines from across Bradley's disciplinary spectrum
- Recruit and support more qualified judges to evaluate student projects
- Encourage greater community participation in the public viewing period

HOW DO STUDENTS GET INVOLVED?

1. Students register to present and work with their faculty mentors to prepare an abstract, a poster display, and a short 5-7 minute presentation for the event.
2. Students come to the Renaissance Coliseum the night before EXPO to set up their posters/displays and have the chance to practice their presentations before peers and faculty mentors.
3. Students return to the Coliseum on judging day at a specified time to make their presentations before their judging committee.
4. Students return to the Coliseum for the public viewing time to share their work with the community, and for the awards ceremony to see if they are an award recipient. Awards are presented by the President, Provost, and College Deans

HOW DO FACULTY GET INVOLVED?

1. Start talking to your students NOW about presenting
2. Invite collaborators and colleagues to serve as judges
3. Register to serve as a judge for other student projects other than your own
4. Join us for the student practice session to help students fine tune their presentations
5. Invite classes, community groups, or others to come to the public viewing session and awards ceremony
6. Offer your own expertise and ideas!

Student Scholarship Expo

April 12-14, 2016
Renaissance Coliseum

This annual event recognizes and promotes student scholarly activities in research and creative production and celebrates collaboration among faculty and students within and across disciplines. Each year, nearly 300 undergraduate and graduate students showcase their work at the Expo, competing for the President's Award, Provost's Award, and Dean's Awards. This year both undergraduate and graduate student projects will be showcased at the same event. To learn more about Expo, click here \(FAQ's\)
