ENROLLMENT, BRANDING AND MARKETING
TASK FORCE UPDATE
11/20/2014

At Bradley, we recognize the areas in which we excel and strive to improve the areas in which we are not “hitting our numbers.” In fact, we have surpassed our expectations in several key areas. In the Renaissance Campaign, we not only hit our number, we exceeded it. Our University endowment, this year in June, reached the highest ever. But in other areas, specifically enrollment and revenue, we did not hit our numbers.

So, what to do?

President Glasser empanelled and charged the Enrollment, Branding and Marketing Task Force to search out the data and consult with the full range of university collective wisdom to correct our course in these areas that are essential to the operation of Bradley. We examined the activities and processes undertaken by Enrollment Management and Marketing to attract and enroll students. Specifically, we sought to identify areas that were effective in addition to areas requiring reinvigoration and change. We looked for and identified creative solutions throughout our discovery process.

We examined aspects of Bradley University branding including public perception. What is our brand promise? How must we position and present our substantial assets to attract and retain students amid the new demographic realities of this and coming decades?

Our Task Force consists of Justin Ball, Paul Schroeder, Susan Andrews and Jeff Huberman, and we have met more than 20 times, examining all facets of student recruitment. More than 60 enhancements were identified—improvements, essential changes and new initiatives that could be made. Many suggested initiatives did not require additional resources, while others had larger costs associated with them. Current resources, where possible, have been reallocated to move forward on higher priority items. Some initiatives, like the Faculty Enrollment Fellows, required new funding.

Today, we are facing real challenges due to rapidly and dramatically changing demographics. The students in the current and future recruitment pools over the next 18 years have already been born. Our traditional market is shrinking, with a shift toward an increasing population of Hispanics. We are in the process of incorporating this new demographic reality into our recruiting strategies.

We looked at our competitors. Surprisingly, our major competitors are not necessarily our regional peers such as Drake, Creighton, Valparaiso, Butler and Evansville. More of our admitted students are actually choosing to go to the University of Illinois-Urbana/Champaign, Illinois State University, University of Illinois Chicago and Northern Illinois University. A major factor is cost. Of the top 15 competitors, five are privates, 11 are publics and only one is smaller. None are of similar size—size does matter—and 15 are larger. Those schools and the number of Bradley applicants who chose them include UIUC 395, ISU 307, UIC 295, NIU 177, Loyola Chicago, DePaul, ICC, Marquette, SIU, Missouri, WIU, Augustana, Iowa State, U of Iowa, SLU and SIUE with the lowest number at 94. Thus, we are becoming very specific in targeting our primary, secondary and tertiary markets: Illinois, border states and areas of the country where the data tells us we can be effective such as California and Texas.

We studied visit day formats and activities. Materials were developed and improved upon such as admissions representative profiles, parent guides and an in-and-around Peoria brochure which are now included in Visit Day folders. Feedback is gathered from the Bradley's Parents' Board and utilized. Visit day presentations now focus increasingly on telling stories about the Bradley Experience to prospective students and parents. More emotion-driven and targeted marketing is taking place. Faculty visit times have become more flexible to fit the faculty member's schedule and the major along with a separate question on the post-visit survey to evaluate the quality of the faculty session.

We developed the Faculty Enrollment Fellows program as a collaborative effort between Enrollment Management and the Council of Deans. More than 90 faculty members participated in two training sessions that provided information so they might better understand the recruitment landscape as well as discuss what parents and students are interested in learning when visiting campus.

Current students serving as Admissions STARS (tour guides, panelists, etc.) received 25 hours of training through meeting with departmental and college representatives, alumni, testing on campus tours, addressing difficult questions and more.

New integrated and enhanced marketing pieces for each stage of the admissions process were developed: Road pieces for meetings at high schools, inquiry pieces for all who indicate an interest in attending Bradley, viewbooks for those who apply and/or visit campus and transfer viewbooks—a first for prospective transfer students. A new yield brochure will be mailed in January 2015 to “close the deal.”

Billboards have been placed in the primary markets of Chicago and Peoria. A great deal of activity is taking place with social media such as advertising on Facebook and Google Adwords. Admissions representatives are communicating with students on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram. Videos are posted on YouTube. A new admissions mobile application was developed, and Spanish language Web pages pertaining to freshman recruitment are soon to be put in place.

Promotional videos, testimonial videos and music videos (“One More Night in Peoria”) were developed and placed on the Bradley website. An admissions congratulatory video is in the works and should be available to congratulate students upon their admission early in 2015. A drone video of the Bradley campus has been made and will be strategically used to provide an aerial perspective of the University.

The message speaks to Bradley being a midsized, right size university—the perfect, ideal size. The word “comprehensive” is being used to speak to outstanding academic programs and experiential learning. Faculty accessibility is emphasized.

We created new and more systematic programs to facilitate alumni communication with prospective students regarding their Bradley Experiences for recruitment purposes.

The Task Force plans to continue to meet and consult with university points of contact and to identify areas of effective improvement. We seek input on an ongoing basis from all university constituencies. Please contact us to share your thoughts and ideas on enrollment, marketing and branding.

a. Procedures

Implementation procedures begin in Fall 2014 with the development of three taskforces to assist with pieces of implementation. The critical needs are a focus on the Registrar's office system and ability to track new courses. Transfer course articulation will need to occur to identify courses from community colleges that will articulate with our Bradley Core Curriculum. Marketing materials need to be developed and course development workshops need to be planned and implemented. As a result:

- Subcommittees 2-6 will be disbanded
- Subcommittee 1 continues working as the General Education Subcommittee, and will become the Core Curriculum Committee following Senate approval of the Bradley Core Curriculum proposal. This committee will oversee course approvals and transfer articulations as per its charge in the Faculty Handbook.
- Three taskforces will be developed in order to assist with the transition from the old to the new system.
 - Tracking system taskforce (Registrar, Programmers, etc.)
 - Marketing materials taskforce
 - Professional development taskforce

Implementation Procedures Calendar

- Fall 2014: Begin transfer articulation procedures
Begin modifying University systems to accommodate new program
- Spring 2015: Core Practices Subcommittee is formed
 - Begins developing criteria for Writing Intensive and Integrative Learning coursesMarketing materials and advisor training materials need to be developed
- Summer 2015: Course Development Workshops
After Course Development Workshops, the Steering Committee will be disbanded.

c. Resources Needed to Implement and Sustain the Bradley Core Curriculum

Implementation of the new core program will require significant resources. The Writing Intensive requirement will require funds for faculty development and increased staffing in the Writing Center; the new Multidisciplinary Integration and Global Perspectives Area of Inquiry and revised curricular elements within other Areas of Inquiry will provide opportunities for new course development, requiring significant faculty time; the increased attention to assessment of Core Outcomes will require additional resources. The Provost, in consultation with the Chair of the General Education Subcommittee and the Director of Institutional Improvement, has developed a budget model to support Bradley Core Curriculum implementation.

The total funding needed to support implementation of the Bradley Core Curriculum is estimated at $150-200K for the initial three-year period, with continued support estimated at $45-50K in subsequent years, provided as new funding to Academic Affairs. Highlights of the budget model include:

1. Starting in Summer 2015, Bradley will offer workshops to help faculty develop appropriate Writing Intensive courses. These workshops will be jointly developed and administered by CTEL, the Core Practices Subcommittee, and staff from the Writing Center. Up to five faculty will engage in a one-week workshop led by a recognized leader in writing instruction, and will receive stipends commensurate with the time commitment for workshop participation and course development. Budget projections include two workshops to be held in Summers 2015 and 2016, one workshop to be held in Summer 2017, for a total of 25 faculty trained as we move towards implementation. Ongoing workshop support on an as needed basis is anticipated.
2. Starting AY 2016-17 and beyond, the staffing levels in the Writing Center will be increased. By the end of AY 2018-2019, we anticipate a total increase of eight faculty course releases (four per semester) beyond the Writing Center Director, and the equivalent of two FTE in graduate student support during the academic year, though the exact blend of faculty/student support may vary depending on demonstrated campus need. Staffing decisions will be made by the Writing Center Director in consultation with the Core Practices Subcommittee.
3. Significant funding in support of course development (approximately $40K) will be spread over the three-year start-up phase, including both academic year and summer support, with modest funding available for course development as early as Spring 2015.

4. Funding for assessment will be increased beyond the current allocation in order to accommodate assessment of student work or other innovated assessment projects. An estimated $5-10K per year will be added beyond the existing university-wide assessment budget.

Changes in the funding levels in support of specific Bradley Core Curriculum needs may be made based on ongoing assessment of best utilization of Bradley Core Curriculum funds, as determined by the Provost and the Senate's Core Curriculum Committee.

d. Course Approvals and Assessment Cycle

The General Education Subcommittee of C & R suggests the following process for approving courses to be a part of the Bradley Core Curriculum during the transitional period and for reviewing Areas of Inquiry through ongoing assessment activities. The transitional period is defined as the period of time needed to review course proposals and course alignment with the Bradley Core Curriculum in order to begin the new general education program. The transitional period will be three academic years: 2014-2015; 2015-2016; 2016-2017. After the 2016-2017 academic year, the first assessment cycle will begin.

Transitional Period: Phase 1 Provisional Approval
Academic Years 2014-2015 and 2015-2016

A. Any existing course that does not require significant modification may be proposed for inclusion in the Bradley Core Curriculum through the following process:

1. A faculty member completes Bradley Core Curriculum Course Addition form.
2. Each proposed course must be approved by the home department and college before being submitted to the Bradley Core Curriculum Committee.
3. The Bradley Core Curriculum Committee will either approve the proposal or return it to the author with comments and suggestions for revision. All recommendations will be forwarded to C&R. This shortened process for current courses skips department and college C&R processes as well as the Subcommittee on Curriculum.

B. Any new or modified course will need to go through established Curriculum and Regulation processes for provisional approval for inclusion in the Bradley Core Curriculum. A significantly modified course includes a change in one or more of the following: course number, title, hours, prerequisites, or course description.

1. The course will need approval by departmental and college curriculum processes as well as the Subcommittee on Curriculum.
2. The Bradley Core Curriculum Committee will review the submitted course addition form.
3. This routing follows the current process under the 1982 general education program.

Course proposals will begin in Spring 2015.

All courses approved during Phase 1 will be reviewed in Phase 2.

Transitional Period: Phase 2 Provisional Approval
